

So your client can focus on the business of giving

Many directors and officers become involved with not-for-profit organisations with benevolent agendas. They are recruited or volunteer for such positions because of the specific skills or experience they bring to these organisations. Yet such persons can be liable for a failure to use care and diligence in carrying out their duties regardless of the type of organisation or its purpose.

Not-For-Profits and their management are increasingly exposed to Management Liability claims ranging from employment issues, such as harassment, discrimination and wrongful termination, to business practices issues, such as misappropriation, financial mismanagement and negligence. These threats include claims from volunteers, employees, regulators, creditors, environmental groups, competitors and suppliers.

Horsell in conjunction with Chartis is pleased to offer you Not-for-ProfitEdge™ an essential 'all-in-one' liability solution specifically designed for Not-For-Profits and their directors, executives and employees (including volunteers). Not-for-ProfitEdge™ offers the security of top quality D&O cover plus Fidelity, Company, Employment, Investigation, Crisis and Taxation Disputes cover.

Quite simply, we are proud to offer you the easiest way to assist your client so they can focus on the business of giving with comprehensive yet cost effective coverage.

PrivateEdge® Advisory Panel

Free Advice - Not-for-ProfitEdge™ Policyholders are entitled to contact a PrivateEdge Advisory Panel firm for advice on matters which are relevant to the cover provided under the policy. This service is provided free of charge, provided the advice does not involve a significant time commitment on the part of the member firm.

Claims Handling Service

If an Insured is unfortunate enough to have a claim made against them, speedy implementation of a good defence strategy is critical. The PrivateEdge Advisory Panel firms have been pre-approved to defend covered claims. In the absence of any conflict of interest, and provided that the member firm's rates and other terms of engagement are reasonable, then consent to any PrivateEdge Advisory Panel firm acting on an Insured's behalf will be granted without delay.

Frequently asked questions

Why should I be concerned about management liability?

You don't have to be a director of a public company to be exposed to management liability. If you are involved in the management of a non-profit entity, you can be the target of a management liability claim concerning your day to day managerial responsibilities. Examples include claims made by employees in connection with their recruitment, employment or termination (including harassment and discrimination), investigations and proceedings brought by a regulator for a breach of company law or workplace safety regulations or a claim made by stakeholders that the organisation mismanaged funds intended for them.

But what if I am involved only as a part-time director and receive no payment for my services?

Directors can be personally liable for a breach of their managerial duties and obligations as an accessory to a contravention by a company or in conjunction with a claim against the company, regardless of whether they were actively involved in the decision or are remunerated or not. Not only are the directors' assets at risk, any spouse, estate, heir or legal representative may also be exposed to a claim for management liability of such director or company manager.

Won't the organisation defend or reimburse me?

Indemnities may be provided by a company to directors and company managers for the cost of defending proceedings brought against them. However, an indemnity may not be available to every person. Also, the directors and company managers may need to fund their own defence if the organisation is unable (because of insolvency or otherwise) or unwilling to make the indemnity available (if there are allegations of fraud or dishonesty or misconduct against the organisation).

What about risks involved with using volunteers?

Directors, company managers and the organisation itself can be at risk of claims brought against them by volunteers in connection with harassment or discrimination claims. Not-for-ProfitEdge™ provides coverage for these scenarios. In addition, Not-for-ProfitEdge™ provides fidelity coverage for fraud by employees and volunteers.

What about claims by beneficiaries?

Depending upon the type of services you provide, there may be a risk of beneficiaries seeking legal redress if they perceive they have not received services due to discrimination. You may also incur costs and be legally liable if a beneficiary makes a harassment claim on the basis of behavior by an employee or volunteer.

Insurance Gaps for Not-for-Profits

Even when Not-for-profits do take out Directors & Officers (D&O) Liability insurance there are often gaps in that cover. Most D&O insurance is designed for public companies and does not cover claims against the organisation itself. With many Not-for-profits being cash-flow poor, this puts the organisation at risk in the event of a claim.

Not-for-profits also face other risks that are not covered by D&O insurance - wrongful dismissal and sexual harassment, claims relating to the staff superannuation fund, crisis management costs etc. That's a whole range of risks that need to be covered, which is why we offer Not-for-ProfitEdge™ - Management Liability Insurance for Non-profits.

Examples of conditions that can take your focus away

The National Safety Council of Victoria

"Any director questioning the value of directors' and officers' indemnity insurance should consider the unfortunate story of Max Eise.

When the Victorian division of the National Safety Council collapsed in 1990 with debts of $255 million, each of its directors, who were acting in a voluntary capacity, was sued by the Commonwealth Bank.

The collapse was largely attributable to the fraud of managing director John Friedrich and it was arguable the directors were not really to blame.

Nevertheless, all but one board member settled with CBA out of court.

Eise, protesting his innocence to the end, opted to defend the action, lost and had a $97 million judgement made against him.

Companies are not required to provide directors and officers cover for their directors. NCS did not have a policy in place and Eise, whose primary asset was his home, lost everything.

Management Liability

Termination / Sexual Discrimination

Jane was a senior employee who believed that she had worked hard and contributed to the success of the business over a significant period of time. Yet when it came to her annual review, she had the impression that she did not seem to be offered the same opportunities that she would have received if she was not a woman. Jane complained to her manager that she was being unfairly treated. Shortly after, Jane was dismissed. Jane commenced employment proceedings against the company who ultimately settled the matter with a payment to Jane for an amount in excess of $80,000 with legal costs exceeding $35,000.

Harassment

An incident occurred at a company Christmas party. One of the employees complained of harassment. The employee was concerned that the complaint was not taken seriously and subsequently commenced proceedings which alleged that the company had failed to prevent the incident and take appropriate action when it was reported. The claim was settled out of court for more than $50,000 with a similar amount spent on legal costs.

Fidelity Cover

A company found accounting irregularities in its payment systems and in subsequent investigations it discovered the theft of $400,000. It turned out that an employee had misappropriated the money and deposited it into a personal bank account. The costs of a fraud investigator were incurred to investigate and determine the quantum of the loss.
